

James Devereux, Jr., EIT

Plumbing Designer

James has experience in the design of plumbing and fire protection systems, rooted in a strong mechanical engineering background. He has completed numerous projects a variety of industry sectors including hospitality, commercial restaurants, multi-family, residential, educational, and medical office buildings. In addition to his design experience, James plays a significant role in Synergy's Construction Administration work.

James specializes in commercial kitchen plumbing design, whole building domestic, black-water, gray water, and stormwater systems design. His work encompasses the development of efficient, sustainable solutions to ensure safety and compliance in various building types.

PROFESSIONAL AFFILIATION

American Society of Plumbing Engineers (ASPE)

EDUCATION

B.S., Mechanical Engineering, University of New Orleans, New Orleans, LA